ORGANIZE FOR STRONG COMMUNITIES!

As the saga of life with Gordo continues, it's clear that our communities are under threat.

The Canadian Union of Public Employees (CUPE) knows that working people build strong communities.

We can build a thriving, environmentally sustainable economy without slashing 20-50 per cent of public jobs and services. We can only do this if the B.C. Liberals recognize the importance of funding public services, respecting workers' contracts and citizens' needs.

CUPE represents more than 110,000 workers in B.C. We provide care for the ill, the elderly, and children in need. We keep our towns and schools clean. We work in libraries, municipalities, colleges, universities and transit services. We are lifeguards, ambulance paramedics, special education assistants, and more. We lead the struggle for pay equity. We work to keep water in public hands.

We are committed to protecting our communities, our rights, and our public services. We work in coalition with students, seniors, church groups, First Nations, small business, people in community care, other unions and concerned citizens.
