

Many EA's are doing unpaid work.

How widespread is this? What can we do?

CUPE Launches Survey

CUPE has launched a long-awaited survey into the unpaid work done by Education Assistants (EAs) in B.C.'s K-12 sector. The survey focuses on the issue of unpaid work performed routinely by EAs, including how much and when unpaid work is performed, why EAs perform unpaid work, and how much the public school system encourages, facilitates or pressures EAs to donate free work time.

Tell us about yourself

This survey is for all EAs – full time, part time, casual – all education support workers providing direct classroom support. We need your help to ensure the largest number possible of EAs participate in this important survey. The easiest (and best) way to do the survey is on-line.

Please take 10 minutes to complete the survey by going to:

www.bceducationassistants.ca and clicking on the survey link. You can also download a hard copy.

Here's how you can help

- Do the survey.
- Distribute copies of this flyer to other EAs at your school (or post one on your bulletin board!)
- Talk to other EAs so they also complete the survey.
- Use the new web site to let other EAs know about the survey.

We need to hear from as many Education Assistants as possible – to find out what's really going on in B.C.'s schools – so we can work together to find solutions.
